How To Prepare Bibliographic Citations: Turabian Format

RefWorks

For information on how to use RefWorks to automatically format your bibliography online according to the Chicago Manual of Style, 15th ed. see: <http://refworks.uconn.edu>
(Note: Turabian is based on the Chicago Manual of Style.)

TURABIAN FORMATS: Notes—Bibliography Style
Parenthetical Citations—Reference List Style

I. Notes—Bibliography Style

The notes-bibliography style, or bibliography style, is widely used in literature, history and the arts.

Preparing the Bibliography

The bibliography, labeled Bibliography or Sources Consulted is a list of sources used in writing the research paper. It appears at the end of the paper and is usually arranged alphabetically by author's last name. The first line of each entry is flush with the left margin. All subsequent lines are indented; the bibliography is single-spaced within sources and double-spaced between sources. Sources without authors are arranged alphabetically by title within the same list. For successive works by the same author, use the author's name in the first entry; thereafter, replace the author's name with a long (3-em) dash (—) followed by a period. Use tabs for consistent alignment. Use italics for titles of books and periodicals; enclose titles of periodical articles in quotations. Capitalize all words of titles except articles, prepositions and conjunctions. Use the font Times New Roman or Palatino.

Documenting Sources Using Footnotes or Endnotes

Cite the authority for statements within the text of the research paper by documenting sources. Use footnotes that appear at the bottom of the page or endnotes that appear in a numerical list at the end of the research paper. Footnotes/endnotes are single-spaced within notes, double-spaced between notes, and indented.

II. Parenthetical Citations—Reference List Style

The parenthetical citations-reference list style, or reference list style, is a citation style used in most social sciences and in the natural and physical sciences. It is also known as author-date-style, because the author's name and the date of publication are the critical elements for identifying sources.

Documenting Sources Using Parenthetical Citations

Cite the authority for statements within the text of the research paper by documenting sources. Put the author's name, date of publication, and relevant page numbers enclosed in parenthesis next to your reference to that source. Place the parenthetical reference in the text just before a mark of punctuation.

Preparing the Reference List

The Reference List, labeled References, is a list of sources used in writing the research paper. The facts of publication are arranged just like those for the bibliography as described above with the following exceptions: the year of publication immediately follows the name of the author; only the first word of book titles/subtitles and periodical articles are capitalized (proper nouns, adjectives continue to be capitalized); titles of periodical articles have no quotation marks.

III. Examples

Below are some common examples of materials cited in both styles.

Each example is given in:

1. Notes-bibliography style (a note [N], followed by a bibliographic entry [B])
2. Reference list style (a parenthetical citation [P], followed by a reference list entry [R]).

For a more detailed description of the styles and numerous specific examples, see chapters 16 and 17 of Turabian's A Manual for Writers of Term Papers, Theses, and Dissertations for notes—bibliography style and chapters 18 and 19 for reference list style.
