I. Preparing the List of “Works Cited”

The list of “Works Cited” is the bibliography—a list of the sources cited in the text of the research paper. It appears at the end of the paper, is double-spaced within and between sources, and is usually arranged alphabetically by author’s last name. Sources without authors are arranged alphabetically by title (omitting any A, An, The) within the same list. The first line of each source is flush with the left margin; second and succeeding lines are indented ½ inch (or five typewriter spaces) from the left margin.

Citing Nonperiodical Print Publications

Entries for nonperiodical print publications such as books consist of several elements in a prescribed sequence:

- Name of the author, editor, compiler, or translator
- Title of the work (italicized)
- Edition used
- Number(s) of the volume(s) used
- City of publication, name of the publisher, and year of publication
- Medium of publication consulted (Print)
- Supplementary bibliographic information and annotation (e.g. Book in a series)

Book: Single Author

Print.
Book: Two or More Authors

For more than three authors, name only the first followed by \textit{et al.}, or you may give all names in full in the order in which they appear on the title page.

Work in an Anthology or Compilation

Multivolume Work

When using 2 or more volumes of a multivolume work, cite the total number of volumes in the work.

Article in a Reference Book

When citing less familiar encyclopedias, give full publication information.

Citing Periodical Print Publications

Entries for publications in print periodicals such as newspapers, magazines, and journals, consist of several elements in a prescribed sequence:

- Author’s name
- Title of the article (in quotation marks)
- Name of the periodical (italicized)
- Series number or name (if relevant)
- Volume number (for a scholarly journal)
- Issue number (if available, for a scholarly journal)
- Date of publication (for a scholarly journal, the year; for other periodicals, the day, month, and year, as available)
- Inclusive page numbers
- Medium of publication (Print)
- Supplementary Information (brief description if article is part of series)

Article in a Scholarly Journal

Article in a Scholarly Journal that Pages Each Issue Separately

If the journal only uses issue numbers, treat the issue number as a volume number.

Article from a Weekly Magazine

For magazines published daily, weekly, or monthly, omit the volume and issue numbers. Give the complete date for daily and weekly magazines; give month and year for monthly magazines.
Article from a Daily Newspaper

Editorial

Review

Interview

If an interview is untitled, include the word Interview after the name of the interviewee.

Citing Nonperiodical Web Publications

Entries for nonperiodical publications on the Web usually contain most of the following components, in sequence:

- Name of the author, compiler, director, editor, narrator, performer, or translator of the work
- Title of the work (italicized if the work is independent; in roman type and quotation marks if the work is part of a larger work)
- Title of the overall Web site (italicized), if distinct.
- Version or edition used
- Publisher or sponsor of the site; if not available, use N.p.
- Date of publication (day, month, and year, as available); if nothing is available, use n.d.
- Medium of publication (Web)
- Date of Access (day, month, and year)

Note: You should include a URL as supplementary information only when the reader cannot locate the source without it or when your instructor requires it. If you present a URL, it would immediately follow the date of access, a period, and a space enclosed in angle brackets, and concluding with a period.

Scholarly Journals

To cite a work in a scholarly journal on the Web, including an article, a review, and an editorial, follow format for print but conclude the entry with the following:

- Medium of publication consulted (Web)
- Date of access (day, month, and year)

Periodical Publication in an Online Database

To cite a work from a periodical in an online database, such as an article, review, and an editorial, follow format for citing works in print periodicals and conclude the entry with the following:

- Title of the database (italicized)
- Medium of publication consulted (Web)
- Date of access (day, month, and year)

II. Documenting Your Sources Using Parenthetical Documentation

In the research paper, acknowledge information taken from each source names in the “Works Cited” and the exact place in that source where the information was located. Put references in parentheses in the text of the paper. The information in the parentheses usually includes the author’s name and the specific page(s), and refers to the same source in the “Works Cited.” If electronic format has no page numbers, use paragraph number preceded by par. or pars. For sources without authors, use a shortened version of the title. Place the parenthetical reference as near as possible to the material it documents, preferably at the end of the sentence. The parenthetical reference precedes the concluding punctuation mark.

Basic Format of Parenthetical Documentation

Text of research paper with parenthetical reference:
Sir Henry Herbert, favorably disposed to the play’s politics, granted a license for Game of Chesse (Shepherd and Womack 83).

Citation in Works Cited:

Variations of Parenthetical Documentation

When authors’ names are mentioned in the text of the paper, use only page numbers in the parenthetical reference.
Shepherd and Womack have identified a “marriage of theatre and social order” in Pinero’s work (251).
Citation in Works Cited:

When citing one of two or more works by the same author, insert a comma after the last name of the author, and add the title of the work (if short), or a briefer version, and the page. Text of research paper with parenthetical reference:

> The characters of Cobro revertido use memories to “redeem and validate” (O’Connell, “Narrating History,” 247)

Citation in Works Cited:

Citing an Online Source with Unnumbered Pages and Paragraphs
When citing an online source in which neither pages nor paragraphs are numbered, give the author only. If the author is unknown, give the title.

Dickinson characterizes nature as a “distant, alien, and indifferent force” and persistent reminder of mortality (“Overview: ‘Slant of Light’”).
