IT WAS A VERY GOOD YEAR

Another successful academic year for the University of Connecticut Libraries has drawn to a close. Mirroring the University's increasing emphasis on undergraduate enrichment, funded research and private giving, the Library strengthened its programs in these areas as well.

The Libraries recruited a second undergraduate services librarian in 2004, and recruited a third, an undergraduate outreach librarian, in 2005. In response to input from undergraduates, the fourth floor of the Homer Babbidge Library was designated a quiet study area, and library hours were extended to 24/7 during final exams. The extension of Babbidge Library's service schedule to 2 a.m. during the academic year has been much appreciated by students. UConn undergraduates awarded the Libraries the second highest score for undergraduate service quality among 35 North American academic research libraries participating in the Spring, 2004 LibQual™ survey.

The Libraries also carried out a number of initiatives to support research and teaching. The Boston Library Consortium's Virtual Catalog was given increased emphasis on our web page and was more heavily used by UConn researchers. The Libraries introduced a cooperative collection development initiative to the Boston Library Consortium to enhance the resources available in regional collections. We remodeled the Document Delivery/ Interlibrary Loan workspace to handle the increasing volume of material being processed there.

Digital Commons@UConn, an institutional repository, was introduced this year, and the Libraries sponsored a successful national symposium on JPEG 2000 with grant funding. The Library also was awarded its third collaborative grant to create an innovative digital collection. We conducted a cost analysis study to support the University's indirect cost proposal to the federal government, and preliminary results indicate that more than 10 percent of our annual expenditures benefit the University's funded research programs.

Staff members continue to evaluate and redesign our services in response to evolving user needs. Our new strategic plan, Plan 2010, was completed. Collections Services and Information Technology Services staff undertook staffing reviews to determine new professional skills needed to address the rapidly changing mix of collection formats.

We received many generous gifts from donors this year, without which many of our achievements would not have been possible. In particular, the Class of 1955 Undergraduate Instruction Classroom and the Document Delivery/Interlibrary Loan renovation were supported with private giving. The Northeast Children's Literature Collection concluded a successful fund raising campaign on the eve of the Dodd Research Center's 10th anniversary.

In the Fall of 2005, the Libraries will roll out a new Pharmacy Library, a technology learning center, and a third electronic classroom in Babbidge Library, this one dedicated solely to undergraduate instruction.

These accomplishments were made possible through the creativity and diligence of the UConn library staff and with the help of our many friends and volunteers. We are grateful for that support.
